CRIME VICTIMS' RIGHTS WEEK

National Crime Victims' Rights Week

April 18- April 24, 2010 is National Crime Victims' Rights Week (NCVRW). This is a time for victim advocates and our communities to learn about victimization, reflect on the cost of crime to our society, and promote laws, policies, and programs to help victims of crime rebuild their lives. The 2010 NCVRW theme is "Crime Victims' Rights: Fairness. Dignity. Respect.". As described in the NCVRW toolkit, "the 2010 NCVRW theme, 'Crime Victims' Rights: Fairness. Dignity. Respect.' recalls the ideals that inspired the victims' rights movement and the laws, services, and awareness we seek to build and promote. These basic human rights, particularly crucial in times of crisis, resonate with victims, service providers, and all the visionaries who helped make these ideals a reality."

NCVRW Toolkit

As providers of services to crime victims you may have received the NCVRW toolkit from the Office for Victims of Crimes. The toolkit contains ideas and materials for raising awareness of victims rights and planning NCVRW events. It can be found at <http://ovc.ncjrs.gov/ncvrw2010/welcome.html> Included in the 2010 toolkit is a DVD which contains a broadcast-ready PSA, radio PSA, and an audio clip of an officer reading the Miranda Warning. The toolkit also provides statistics on victimization and information on the history of crime victims' rights in our nation. The toolkit can serve to strengthen presentations, educate our communities, the statistics can aid in grant writing, and the toolkit tells the story of victimization and victims' rights nationally.

Partnerships and Collaborations

Planning events and raising awareness often requires more creativity and innovation than we may have time or resources to provide. April is also National Sexual Assault Awareness Month and National Child Abuse Prevention Month. Partnerships and collaborations become an important tool to continue in our work of raising awareness and serving victims. The NCVRW toolkit has done a lot of the work for you and provides ideas for events, collaborations, and collateral materials that can be tailored to fit your own event.

“A ‘just’ society is measured by how its citizens are treated by the justice system. No one chooses to be a victim of crime, but when a crime occurs and a victim or victim’s family is thrust into the system, they trust and deserve to be treated by agents of the state with dignity, respect and fairness during all phases of the criminal justice process. When all else fails, that may be the only “justice” they receive...it is the closest thing to doing what is right.”

in memory of their murdered daughter

“The American crime victim’s plea for fairness, dignity and respect was forged in the fire of a fundamental human need—that the individual citizen, whose life had been most directly impacted by the criminal act, would be assured that they were not an outsider to the process, and treated not as if they were mere evidence of the offense—but that their misfortune and their voice was of value, that they would be heard, listened to and appreciated, and that they would be regarded as essential to the justice system that was charged with righting the wrong.”
